We live on the other side of the hedge from Bank House and we have never had any issues with dogs barking, floodlight nuisance, traffic increase or anything else from that premises. We run a boarding cattery and if there was a problem with dogs barking you can be sure that we would have mentioned it as it would affect the cats in our care - never once have any of our customers mentioned dogs being heard and this is because they don't bark! We have seen the once derelict buildings being turned into attractive premises, the property has been transformed and is immaculately kept. The dogs in question are trained to be quiet - to such an extent that I am wondering whether the 'problem barking' is in fact coming from a completely different property altogether? The current residents of Bank House take pride in their property - unlike the previous residents of the property - and are trying to run a small business in already difficult times. I feel sorry that suddenly people are coming out of the woodwork to complain about a business which cannot honestly cause them much hassle in the grand scheme of things. The residents of Bank House are our neighbours, they are good neighbours and we fully support them.
