I would like to make a few comments about the proposed application for housing in Three Elms.

Three Elms Road is already extremely busy and the roundabout at the Whitecross roundabout is already like a race track! With 5 exits so close to each other it is only a matter of time before accidents become a regular occurrence, and this will only increase with additional traffic.

Huntingdon Lane is a quiet country lane and this development will impact the people already living there and take away yet more green space from an area that is becoming increasingly urbanised. We are supposed to be protecting our environment and wildlife not destroying it!

What about the infrastructure needed to support a large development? Nurseries, schools and doctors surgeries are already over subscribed, and will only add to this.

I was not born in Hereford, but have lived here for many years and the changes taking place particularly with regard to housing are not making Hereford more appealing to live in, but quite the reverse and ruining what is a beautiful rural county.

We do not need yet another huge housing development in this area of Hereford.
